

LECTURES AND
MUSIC GALORE

Annual Rush County Chautauqua,
August 4 to 11, Will Furnish Varied Lot of Entertainment.

GEORGE R. STEWART IS COMING

Gov. R. B. Glenn of North Carolina
And Gov. E. W. Hock of Kansas Will Lecture.

FOUR MUSICAL ORGANIZATIONS

Dr. Aked, Formerly of Rockefeller's
Church, is Highest Priced Talent
Ever Employed Here.

Today the program for the next
annual chautauqua was announced
and it reveals that the annual assembly for this year will set a standard that will be hard to reach by any future assemblies. The Chautauqua
will be held August fourth to eleventh beginning on Sunday and ending on Sunday, as it has for the past several years.

The program committee made a special effort to get talent which will meet the requirements of cosmopolitan audiences. The committee succeeded in a large measure as there is a large variety of lecturers and
musical numbers included in the week
of intellectual treats.

The old custom of combining the chautauqua and the institute will be taken up again this year. It will be remembered this question was decided by a vote at the fall meeting of the Rush County Teachers Association.
This plan was adopted at the opening of the chautauqua in Rush county and was carried on successfully
until a county superintendent who opposed the plan was elected and changed the plan. The sessions of the teachers' institute are held in the morning and they all buy season tickets at a reduced rate when they pay their institute fees. It enables the Rush County Chautauqua Association and the teachers to employ instructors and lecturers in conjunction and thereby lessen the cost to a slight degree. At the same time the surroundings are very congenial for
the teachers institute.

This year the program committee
endeavored to employ talent which will give the chautauqua a great impetus on the first Sunday and which will close the assembly on the last Sunday with pleasing taste left for the one the following year.

There is little probability but what
all will agree that the committee succeeded, since it has arranged for Dr.
Aked, the English lecturer and minister of Rockefeller fame, and has since adopted the United States as
his home, to open the chautauqua
with two lectures on the first Sunday,
and for George R. Stewart, the celebrated lecturer, to close the assembly
with two lectures on the last Sunday.

The committee has been seeking
about for the two most popular and
most-talked-of governors on the lyceum platform today and the members believe they have the choice of the lot in Gov. R. B. Glenn, of North Carolina and Gov. E. W. Hock of Kansas. There are approximately twenty governors lecturing today and the committee is of the opinion that the two who will lecture here are the best. They are both prominent in their own political parties. Gov.
Hock is a Republican and Gov. Glenn
is a Democrat.

Rushville and Rush county people
will have an opportunity for the first time to hear the Jesse Pugh Concert Company, headed by Jesse Pugh of this city, at the chautauqua next summer. The company will be here

for two days and it will be the first time Mr. Pugh has appeared before a home audience since his successful
entrance upon the Lyceum stage.

The first Sunday's program will be composed of two lectures by Dr.
Aked, one in the afternoon and one
at night. Dr. Aked won fame and renown as a minister in England and gained still more when he came to the United States and assumed the pastorate of John D. Rockefeller's
church in New York City. He is now
a minister in California and is engaged most of the time in lecture
work. He is the highest priced talent
ever employed at the Rush county
chautauqua.

Sunday the Canning Family orchestra comes for a two days' engagement. This organization will give the musical preludes to both of the Sunday programs, the Monday afternoon. Continued on page eight.

WILL PROBABLY NEVER RECOVER

Shots Penetrated Lungs of Peter Gil-
son Who Was Hurt When Gun Exploded Accidentally.

HIS AGE HINDERS RECOVERY

Dr. R. T. Blount, who is attending Peter Gilson, the aged man who was accidentally shot by Will Stevens at the Fry farm a short distance north
of the city New Year's afternoon,
doubts very much whether Mr. Gilson
will recover from the injuries
and declares that his condition is extremely serious. The shot penetrated
his arm and shoulder and several of them tore the flesh of his breast away. A few of them penetrated his lungs and it is this which causes
grave apprehensions. It is feared that poison will set in where the shots
entered the lungs and cause the aged man's death. Blood poison also is feared. Mr. Gilson hasn't very much vitality to withstand the attack on account of his old age.

BOARD ELECTS
NEW MEMBERS

Chooses Them According to Districts
Arranged According to Resolution Passed Recently.

RUSH COUNTY IS IN THIRD

The State board of agriculture, in
its regular annual meeting yesterday
re-elected five members under the new districting without opposition.
There were contests in four districts,
but the third district in which Rush
county is located, was not one of them.

At a recent meeting of the board
a resolution was passed providing for the redistricting of the State for election purposes, in accordance with recommendations placed before the board some time ago by the special redistricting committee. The resolution was in the form of an amendment to the constitution of the organization. The members of the board are now chosen by ballot and represent the various agricultural
horticultural and fair association bodies in their various districts. The members are chosen to serve two years, one-half of the membership of
sixteen retiring at the end of each year.

The third district is composed of Decatur, Franklin, Shelby, Hancock,
Rush, Fayette, Union and Wayne
counties. Knobe Porter of Hagerstown, is the present member of the committee.

HEALTH BOARD
BEFORE COUNCIL

Gave Lengthy Report on Six Cases of Scarlet Fever Now in This City.

DO NOT FEAR AN EPIDEMIC

Water Committee Instructed to Try
For Good Well Northwest of City—Prospects Bright.

The city council met in the first
regular session of the new year last night. A special order of business
was to hear remonstrators on the assessment roll of the East Ninth street
sidewalk improvement. No one appeared before the council to remonstrate and the assessment roll as originally given was passed. The matter of advertising and setting a date for remonstrators was merely conforming with the law on such improvement.

The city board of health composed
of Drs. Lewis, VanOsdol and Logan, appeared before the council and submitted a report on the scarlet fever
outlook. The board reported that at present there were six cases here in the city and that idle rumors to the contrary were wrong and unfounded.
The physicians stated that they had been unable to locate the source of the disease and that the object of
their report was to give the council
the facts in the case. In every home
where a case has been reported a quarantine is maintained and every effort is being made to prevent an epidemic.

It is understood that the board of health has been censured by some for
not imposing a more rigid quarantine, but according to the physicians
the quarantine is very effective, in
that no one is allowed to visit the sick
and even where the man of the house
is engaged in business he is not allowed to enter the sick room. By following this quarantine the doctors
believe they have done about all that is necessary and if the disease
spreads it will be through carelessness.

The special committee for the investigation of a water supply reported that they had visited the Powell
land northwest of the city and believed
that the city would do well to drill
for water in this direction. The committee was enthusiastic about the prospects of obtaining a good supply of water. The question was discussed at length and the committee was instructed to locate a well in this direction from the city and a well will probably be drilled on the Alexander
farm.

The question of the illegal tapping
of the city sewer by the Rushville
Furniture Company was again discussed. Chairman Moore stated that he had not completed his investigation and further time was granted.

The council did not name two new members of the library board to succeed Mrs. John F. Moses and B. F.
Miller as was expected. This was carried over until the next meeting.
The report of Mayor Black for the month of December was submitted
and the usual bills allowed before adjourning.

FIRE BURNS OLD LOG HOUSE

Blaze Destroys Ancient Landmark
Near Richland.

A log house built over sixty years
ago on the Thacker farm near Rich-
land was destroyed by fire yesterday.
The house was built by a man named
Jones and was considered a landmark by residents of that section of the county. It had been unoccupied
since Thanksgiving and for this reason it is believed the fire was from incendiary origin. James Brown had rented the house and had made some repairs on the interior. The owner
formerly lived here, but is now a resident of Alexandria, Ind.

RUSH SUFFERS AS
IS USUALLY CASE

Pays $16,980.83 to the State and is Apportioned Only $8,876 For School Purposes.

SOME COUNTIES, THE OPPOSITE

Apportionment is Made on Basis of $1.87 a Pupil as Determined by School Enumeration.

The next Indiana general assembly
is to be asked by the auditor of the State and the State superintendent
of public instruction to amend the law regulating the semi-annual apportionment of State school funds so
as to give the State superintendent,
who makes the apportionment, ten
days from the final settlement by the county treasurers with the auditor of State in which to do the work. Under the present law, it is required
that the apportionment be made the day following the close of the settlement by counties.

Charles A. Greathouse, State superintendent, has completed the computations for the current semi-annual apportionment. The total school taxes
collected by the counties as reported
in the settlement sheets to the auditor
was $1,207,158.59. This was argu-
mented by interest on the State school fund. The amount apportioned was $1,407,805.95. Of the total amount of school funds available including the interest on school funds, $62,772.24 was set aside for the deficiency fund, to be distributed later.
A balance was left in the treasury of $996.82. The apportionment was made on a basis of $1.87 a pupil, as determined by the recent school
enumeration.

As usual a number of counties
drew from the State treasury more money than they paid in, due to high rate of school enumeration and a comparatively small property valuation. Of the larger counties in this class there were Allen, St. Joseph, Vanderburg and Vigo. Of the larger counties which drew less than they paid in there were Marion and Wayne. Rush county, which paid in $8,013.83 more than it drew, is an example of what was done by most of the counties which are purely agricultural.

Other counties in the Sixth district
suffered by the apportionment. Fayette paid in $9,450.90 and was apportioned $6,930.22; Franklin paid
in $9,043.01 and received $7,928.80; Hancock paid in $15,790.67 and was apportioned $9,144.30; Henry paid in $19,303.87 and received $13,136.75;
Shelby paid in $17,984.84 and was apportioned $13,523.84; Union paid
in $4,663.67 and was apportioned
$2,711.50 and Wayne paid in $25,
261.35 and received $19,081.48.

TO ESTABLISH
GAME PRESERVE

Farmers Owning Over 3000 Acres of Land Have Signed Articles
of Agreement.

WILL BE STOCKED BY STATE

No Hunting on the Land Involved
Will be Allowed For Period of
Four Years.

A State game preserve embracing
over three thousand acres of land
will be established east of the city in a short time. This will be the second State preserve in the county and one of the largest in the State. An agreement between the various land owners making up the preserve has been entered. It is planned to stock the preserve with a large number of Hungarian partridges and they will be liberated somewhere on the preserve.
These partridges are about three times the size of a quail. It is very likely that a few golden pheasants
will also be placed on the preserve.

The preserve will receive shortly a shipment of signs reading "State Game Preserve. No Hunting," which will be distributed equally among the land owners and will be displayed in a conspicuous place. The preserve
will be in close touch with the game
commissioners and any violations of the law will meet with sure and certain punishment. The law regarding a game preserve states that no hunting shall be permitted for a period of
four years.

The agreement signed by the land
owners is as follows: We, the undersigned land owners and tenants
enter into an agreement to form a game preserve of our united land lying adjacent to each other. We agree to allow no hunting upon this preserve for a period of four years after
it has been stocked with game by the
game commissioner, except that land owners and lawful tenants, with the members of their families, may hunt
rabbits and squirrels upon their own land only. We further agree to report all violations to the game commissioner and will co-operate with him in all reasonable ways for propagation, protection and preservation
of such birds as he may place upon
the preserve.

The following men signed the agreement: L. Link, 320 acres; W.
H. Helm, 380; W. H. Helm as trustee,
158; W. H. Helm, trustee, 180; John
C. Blackledge, 290; George W. Looney,
Jr., 156; Jacob S. Blackledge,
300; William J. Wilson, 80; H. Lee
Wilson, 40; Robert Kennedy, guardian, 330; C. Ver Megee, 115;
Frank Megee, 170; Irma W. Mitchell,
140; George Smith, 120; A. R.
Buell, 130; D. C. Buell, 190; Theo.
H. Reed, 330; Glen Miller, 60; Marshall Blackledge, 60; M. A. Black-ledge, 77. The total number of acres
in the preserve is 3016.

McCANN CASE DISMISSED.

The case of the State vs. Marion McCann for carrying concealed weapons, which was to have been tried today in Squire Kratzer's court
was dismissed. Policeman Wolters was the prosecuting witness. The case was set for trial several different times and the dismissal came
as no great surprise.

LEG IS BROKEN.

Carl Bain, employed on the farm
of Joshua Carney, south of Morris-
town, received a painful injury to his right leg while breaking stalks in one of the fields on Mr. Carney's farm.
The pole used in breaking stalks flew
back and struck him on the leg and broke it.

ANNOUNCES HIS CANDIDACY

Earl H. Sears of Near Carthage
Would be Commissioner.

Earl H. Sears of near Carthage has announced his candidacy for county
commissioner of the northern district, subject to the decision of the Republican county nominating convention. Mr. Sears is the second man
so far to announce his candidacy.
At present Merrill Ball is commissioner from the northern district and
it is not known whether or not he will again be a candidate for the office.

ASKS DAMAGES FOR
BODILY INJURIES

Fred A. Knecht of Washington Township Files Suit For $1,000
Against Thomas B. Scott.

IS THE OUTGROWTH OF A FIGHT

Frederick A. Knecht of Washington township today filed suit in the circuit court for one thousand dollars against Thomas B. Scott, a neighbor. The suit is the outgrowth
of a fight in which the two men engaged in October of last year. The argument was over a calf which escaped and which was locked up by the plaintiff. A grand jury indictment was returned against Scott
shortly after the altercation, he pleaded guilty to the charge of assault and battery in court and was fined one dollar and costs.

Knecht charges Scott did "in a
rude, insolent and angry manner
touch, strike, beat and wound the plaintiff by striking him in the face
with a rock or stone." The plaintiff
averts he was injured and damaged
and was so sick and sore that he was unable to work for two weeks. He says his doctor bill as a result of the injuries was twenty-five dollars. He alleges he suffered great bodily pain
and humiliation.

MEETING IS OF
VITAL IMPORTANCE

Merchants Will Hold First Session of
New Year and Good Attendance
is Desired.

SEVERAL IMPORTANT TOPICS

The officers of the Rushville Retail Merchants Association urge that the business men turn out for the regular meeting of the association tomorrow night. It is of vital importance that a representative body of merchants be present as business of great worth
will be transacted.

It is pointed out this is the first meeting of the new year and the merchants hope to do as much this year as they did last. To achieve as much success, it is urged they will have to be up and doing. It is pointed out that now is the time to act and to formulate plans to draw more manufacturing institutions here.

There are two things of very vital importance which will be considered
and it is hoped that as many merchants as possible will take part in the deliberations. The hitchrack question is one. The rack tender must have more money or he will be compelled to discontinue his work. The question will be put to the merchants
whether or not the hitchrack shall
go. There is another question which comes under the ruling of the sanction board and which will be decided by the association tomorrow
night.

TARPLEE TRIED
BY JUDGE BLAIR

Divorce Suit Sent From This County
to Shelby on Change of Venue
is Heard.

HIS DECISION IS WITHHELD

Mrs. Tarplee Withdraws Cross-Complaint at Beginning—She Complained First.

Immediately following the acquittal
of James Corbett on the charge of child stealing, Judge Blair, Tuesday morning took up the case of James Tarplee vs. Esther Tarplee, suit for divorce, says the Shelbyville News.
The case came here from the Rush
circuit court on change of venue several weeks ago and is attracting much
attention in that city as the parties
are well known residents of that community.

This is the second time that Mr.
and Mrs. Tarplee have been in court,
the first having been when she filed
suit for divorce in the Marion Superior court. She was refused a divorce
by Judge Pliny W. Bartholomew.

The suit now on trial was filed in the Rush circuit court and was immediately followed by one on the part of Mrs. Tarplee, who came to the front with a cross complaint equally
as impressive as the original as filed
by her husband.

Only a few witnesses were heard
in the case, and the greater part of the time Tuesday afternoon was occupied by an examination of Mrs.
Tarplee.

The attorneys for the plaintiff
questioned her concerning her withdrawal of the cross complaint, and asked if this action was not taken in an attempt to show that she still loved her husband and prevent his obtaining his divorce. She denied that this was her motive but stated that she had always loved her husband
and could hardly endure his absence
even though she filed a suit for divorce.

The troubles of the Tarplees seems to have arisen when Mr. Tarplee permitted several relatives to live at his home, who were caring for his farm
of one hundred acres. Mrs. Tarplee
contests that the men were not needed at the farm and that their presence made more work for her than
she could stand.

The complaint charges abandonment; that defendant attacked plaintiff one time while he was ill with indigestion and said: "You have deceived me and should have told me
you were subject to these spells."

The complaint further alleges that
the defendant was a woman of vile
temper and made no effort to control
the same. She is accused of forbidding the sons of the plaintiff to come to their home, that the son Harold
had stole some soap and would steal
anything and she threatened to have her son by another husband come to the house and whip her second husband's son.

The defendant's cross complaint
charged the plaintiff with fault-finding; that he ceased to love her and
that he caused his son to antagonize
her, causing a nervous breakdown,
but this cross complaint was withdrawn.

Mr. Tarplee based his complaint
largely on the cruel and inhuman action of his wife in filing the former
suit for divorce and the resulting expense and hardship he was forced to endure.

The evidence in the case was completed Tuesday afternoon, but no decision was given by Judge Blair who took the case under advisement.

Fur Bearing Animals Are Becoming Scarce

Why does the price of furs continue to go up? is a question that is frequently referred to the United States biological survey. Henry W. Henshaw, who is at the head of the government's biological work in answering this question says the present high price of furs is due less to passing fashion than to the actual and growing scarcity of fur-bearing animals.

"Wearing a coat and for personal adornments furs occupy a place of their own," said Mr. Henshaw, "and there seems to be no acceptable substitute for them. For years the demand for furs has been greater than the supply, and, chiefly as a result of the encroachment of civilization on the breeding range of the animals and the unceasing activity of trappers, reduced. If in the future furs are to be worn by any but the rich, it would seem that recourse must be had to fur farming on a large scale. The fur bearers best adapted for artificial breeding appear to be foxes, minks and martens.

"Attempts to raise these animals, especially the first two named, are being made by private parties in various parts of this country and Canada. So far none of these enterprises appear to have passed the experimental stage, although a number of breeders of the silver fox claim to have made the business remunerative. It is believed that under suitable climatic conditions and with a fair understanding of the nature and methods of the business, the rearing of foxes and minks, and perhaps also martens, can be made a permanent and profitable occupation. The experiments now under way are being watched with great care, and all possible information is being obtained from breeders as to the treatment and feeding of the animals, with a view of ultimately issuing bulletins on the subject to supplement the two already published on fox farming and the muskrat industry."

Mr. Henshaw again calls attention

quired for setting out and caring for these bird reserves will be richly repaid by the results.

3. By carefully protecting the birds already occupying the premises. Present sentiment for the preservation of insectivorous birds is already strong in most parts of the country and the chief need of protective laws is to insure the safety of our birds from foreign immigrants who, having been accustomed at home to kill for food any and all kinds of birds, large and small, young and old, naturally assume the same privilege in their adopted home. In some parts of the country, moreover, such birds as robins, blue-birds, night-hawks, killdeer, flickers and other valuable species are slaughtered for food in vast numbers by citizens, either ignorant or careless of the fact that the country can ill-afford to lose the services of these species. The quails and prairie chicken are favorite and legitimate objects of sportsmen, but they have been so ruthlessly pursued that they are now generally scarce and in many localities practically extinct. As the bob white is a most efficient weed destroyer, to say nothing of its being an active hunter, the farmer is called on to decide whether this bird is not too valuable on his farm to be shot for food or sport.

4. By supplying water for birds. Though at first thought it may seem a small matter, a supply of water for drinking and bathing purposes is of great importance to birds. Running water is, of course, preferable, but shallow vessels distributed over the premises at short intervals, in which a supply of water can be constantly renewed, will be found to attract great numbers of birds and induce them to make their homes there.

The biographical survey is co-operating actively with the officials of various states in enforcing the laws prohibiting the sale and possession of certain plumage for millinery. The condition of the plumage traffic of Los Angeles, San Francisco, Salt Lake City, Denver, Kansas City, St. Louis, Chicago and Milwaukee was investigated. It was found that no heron aigrettes were being sold in California, and very few in Utah and Colorado; a few were on sale in St. Louis and Kansas City, and these were shortly afterward seized under the same law; a few in Milwaukee and many in Chicago.

The Shea law, passed by the New York legislature in 1910, went into operation July 1, 1911, and a similar law passed by the New Jersey legislature in May, 1911, became effective in August, 1911. Each of these laws prohibits the sale of possession of plumage of birds of the same family as any that are found within the state. The desirability of similar legislation will be brought to public attention in other parts of the United States. Through the state department statistics of the trade in aigrettes throughout the world have been procured, and the bureau will soon publish the information.

TRUANCY COMES RATHER HIGH

Total Cost to State of Activities of Various Officers is Over $50,000.

THEY RETURN 22,919 PUPILS

Assistance Given 6,442, Enabling Them to Attend School, Amounts to $17,087.41.

Under the compulsory school attendance law in Indiana, during the school year of 1910-11 the total cost to the state of the activities of the various officers and the aid given needy children by such officers was $50,052.41. The number of children required to attend school, after being out on different pretexts, was 22,919. The expense per capita of bringing them back to school was $2.18.

Figures are being compiled for the annual report of the Board of State Charities. During the school year Amos W. Butler, secretary of the state board, acted as president of the State Board of Truancy.

Each county in the state is permitted under the law to have a truant officer. The law also provides that a city having a school enumeration of 5,000 or more children, or two or more cities and towns in any county having a combined school enumeration of 5,000 or more, in the discretion of the county board of education, may constitute a separate district for the purpose of the act.

During the year assistance was given 6,442 children to enable them to go to school. That cost amounted to $17,087.41, an average of $2.65 per capita.

Cases were taken into court in 383 instances. Ten of those were pending at the close of the year. Of the 373 closed only thirty-three were decided against the truant officer.

The work done required 16,465½ days' time, the truant officers making 76,926 visits. Their salary under the law is $2 a day. In some cities an additional allowance is granted. The reports received show salaries to the amount of $33,965.

For the first time in several years a large part of the corn crop is still in the fields at this time. Gathering was impossible for the last few weeks on account of the mud. GRAY HAIR MAKES YOU LOOK OLD

Use Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur and Your Gray Hair Will Quickly Vanish.

Gray hair is a mark of age, and nothing that can be said as to its beauty will offset the disadvantages of this mark of age set upon your brow.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy darkens the hair and restores it to its youthful beauty. Our grandmothers and their grandmothers before them used sage and sulphur for darkening their hair. Nothing has ever been found more effective for this purpose than these two time-honored remedies, but Wyeth, a modern chemist, has combined the two with other ingredients, which makes a delightful dressing for the hair, and which not only removes every trace of dandruff but promotes the growth of the hair. It also stops the hair from falling out, and makes it beautiful.

All druggists are authorized to refund the money if it fails to do exactly as represented.

Don't neglect your hair and don't resort to old-time hair dyes. Get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur from your druggist today, and notice the difference in your hair after a few days' use.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists, Special Agents, Hargrove and Mullin.

Wednesday, January 3, 1912.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

FOR SHERIFF.

We are authorized to announce the candidacy of J. K. Jameson for the office of sheriff of Rush county, subject to the decision of the county Republican nominating convention.

COMMISSIONER NORTHERN DISTRICT.

We are authorized to announce the candidacy of Earl H. Sears for commissioner of the northern district, subject to the decision of the county Republican nominating convention.

Bob LaFollette removed his collar while speaking at Dayton, O. This renews our faith that he is loyal to the people's cause.

Dr. Sun Yat Sen has been elected president of China. He will have to get up early mornings to shake hands with 400,000,000 people.

The New York police breathe much more freely now that the peace dinner has got by without having to call out the Boy Scouts to preserve order.

The railroads have ordered 60,000 new freight cars. They may not be needed to transport merchandise, but anyway they will assist our leisure class in securing transportation about the country.

Less than a hundred delegates were present at the recent widely heralded Ohio insurgent Republican convention, addressed by a half dozen men whose national note might have been expected in itself to attract an audience. The "delegates" were selected by the Ohio manager of LaFollette's boom, and yet these delegates were so conscious of the hopelessness of trying to elect LaFollette delegates from Ohio that they declined to make him their official candidate "for the time being" and planned to cloak their movements under an ostensible espousal of Roosevelt, who is not a candidate. This at the close of LaFollette's campaigning tour of the State, so planned as to culminate in the "progressive" convention! The LaFollette movement in Ohio seems to have plenty of officers and a powerful press bureau, but very few soldiers in the ranks.

At the demand of the State Tax Board and State officials a heavy increase was made by the assessors last spring in valuation of taxables. Increases were made in most of the townships in this county, but it will be noticed that there has been no reduction in the State tax rate, so that every person whose property was boosted in valuation will have the privilege of paying a larger amount to help provide for the enormous increase in salaries of State officials and employees and other State expenses provided for by the last legislature. As these taxes are paid it will be pleasant to recall the promise of economy and retrenchment made during the last campaign by the orators of the party which controlled the legislature and is in power in the State at present. And to make it all more discouraging there is a strong probability that the State tax rate will have to be increased next year.

One great reason for the tremendous modern vogue of advertising, is the amount of time it saves the public in these days of hustle.

When a person starts out to find a certain article without any previous notion of where it can be bought to best advantage, a wearisome round of shopping usually becomes necessary. With all the calls upon one's time, people are little inclined to start out in this aimless way.

The merchant that gives the public a good idea of his stock through the newspaper catches a crowd of people who dislike to waste their time on indefinite shopping expeditions.

Furthermore, many people dislike to go into a store and take the time of clerks or the proprietors to look over a stock unless they are fairly sure of buying. If they can satisfy themselves in advance that they can probably get what they want at a certain place, they feel that by going there they have saved their own time and energy and have escaped the embarrassment of looking over a stock without buying anything.

Editorialettes.

It seems that there are very few farmer meetings in Indianapolis that Rush county men are not interested.

Sadia True of Shelbyville charged in a divorce complaint that Carl, her hubby was Untrue. There ought to be some kind of a quip to that. You do it.

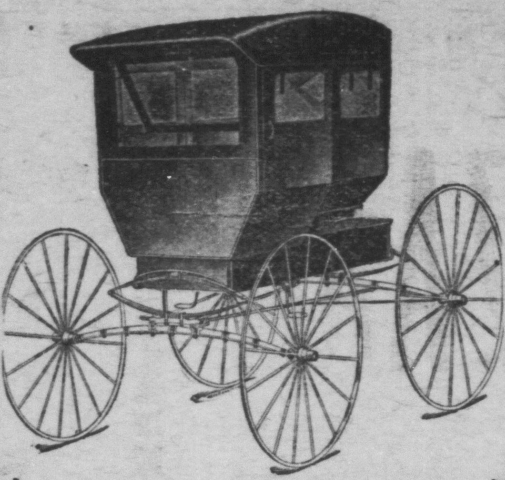

Women who find six months a long time to wait for their alimony should reflect that none of the great aims of life are ever won without dogged perseverance and patience.

At least the Greensburg Times has little right to criticize the New Castle Courier, a real newspaper.

Saving up your money for that chautauqua season ticket?

In a moment of weakness the other day we wrote a thing called a daffydil. The mails have been bringing us one ever so often ever since. Here's a sample: "If Ab Denning is president of the East Hill Cemetery Association, is Doc Sexton?"

Up at Richmond the police are killing dogs daily and the New Castle Courier suggests that while they're at it, they should kill some of the two-legged kind.

These storm buggies are the ones we guarantee to give you the service you pay for and we have plenty of them for you. We have paid special attention in the selection of our storm buggies to get one that the doors work easy on and one that will always work and not give you any trouble. We have the sliding doors of the type that has been in use over two years and we know without a doubt that it will always work and with ease. Is this the kind of buggy you want or do you want the kind that will cause you trouble? If you want the best see us for we have them.

WILL SPIVEY
AT ONEAL BROS.

The Hancock county commissioners turned down a road roller at their meeting this week. How thoughtful of them to do such a thing, especially if they can get along without it.

The New Castle Times admits it uses three columns on every farmers' institute held in Henry county. Please send us marked copies for proof.

What Our Neighbors Are Talking About

ADDS FLESH ON FARM.

(Richmond Palladium.)

The great value of farm life in securing health has been perfectly demonstrated by John Reinhardt, a local man of 22, who added a pound a week to his weight through farm work, so that he would be eligible to join the army. Reinhardt applied for admission to Uncle Sam's service about the middle of last month, but was refused on the grounds that he was three pounds too light. He then began work on a farm north of the city, and "worked hard and ate a lot." Recently he triumphantly presented himself with three new pounds to Corporal Hern at the local recruiting office, and was enrolled as the first army recruit of 1912.

Commenting on Richmond's position in the State as a recruiting center, Corporal Hern said that the city was making a good record and had fine prospects for surpassing some of her rival cities this year. Corporal Hern expects several new applicants during the next few days, and is planning to start 1912 with a rush. Under Hern's management last month the local station broke its previous record by adding eight recruits to the United States Army.

Austin Frazee of Orange Writes That it Can Not be Raised at a Profit.

ON LAND WORTH $100 AN ACRE

Believes There is Misunderstanding in Regard to Chairman Lee's Attitude Toward Party.

Austin Frazee of Orange, brother of John P. Frazee of this city, has contributed the following to the Indianapolis Star:

There seems to be a little misunderstanding in regard to Mr. Lee's attitude toward the party he represents in Indiana. I have no personal acquaintance with Mr. Lee, but I see the predicament he has fallen into. For more than a year there has gone up a cry about the high cost of living and a general demand for a reduction, which is generally conceded to be a just demand.

This doubtless had its effect upon President Taft, and in looking around to see what he could do to benefit the conditions, he struck upon the Canadian reciprocity scheme and worked it with all his might. The result of which would have been to reduce the price of lumber, wheat, oats and barley.

We have heard no complaints upon the lumber question, but grievous complaints upon the part of the farmers about the price of wheat. Every well-informed farmer knows that 80-cent wheat can not be produced on $100 land, except at a loss. You may pick about 100 different articles that come to your home and flour is the cheapest article you get, according to what it costs to produce it.

Mr. Taft, being a lawyer, and not a farmer, had not discovered this and was trying to further cheapen a great commodity that was already relatively too cheap, as the farmers look at the matter. Mr. Lee did not make these conditions and did not make the dissatisfaction. He only discovered it and reported the same.

The price of wheat was held down all during the reciprocity negotiations and went up 10 cents on the bushel immediately after Canada knocked it out.

The Republican party and Mr. Taft should thank Mr. Lee instead of blaming him.

During the last year 1,200,000 miles of telegraph wire were added to that already standing.

The POOL of FLAME

Hole moved on towards the gangway, whence his voice arose, an instant later, greeting his visitor. The latter put a hurried question, which O'Rourke did not catch, but the captain's reply was quick enough:

"Only a mutinous dorg of a deck-and. Wanted shore leave and refused to go forrard when ordered. 'E ain't 'urted none. Mr. Dennison 'ere just 'ave 'im a tap to keep 'im quiet."

The Irishman swore beneath his breath and watched the first officer. The light from the lantern at the gangway glanced dully upon the polished barrel of the revolver, and the gleaming line was steadily directed towards O'Rourke's head. Upon reconsideration he concluded to lie still, to wait and watch his opportunity; for the present, at least, he was indisposed to question Dennison's willingness to use the weapon. O'Rourke was to be kept quiet at all hazards, and he knew it full well; for once he conceded discretion the better part of valor, and was patient.

In the face of the fact that the importation of hashish into Egypt has been declared illegal by Khedival legislation, the drug is always to be obtained in the lower dives of Alexandria, Cairo and Port Said—if one only knows where to go and how to ask for it. Manufactured in certain islands of the Grecian Archipelago, it is mysteriously exported under the very noses of complaisant authorities and, eluding the rigor of Egyptian customs, as well as the vigilance of Egyptian spies, finds its way to the fellahs—among other avid consumers; speaking baldly, is smuggled into the land. Customs inspections, furthermore, are as severe as might be expected by anyone acquainted with the country and its inhabitants—as was O'Rourke.

He felt, then, no sort of surprise at the brevity of the official visitation. The inspector, accompanied by an excessively urbane and suave Captain Hole, consciously but briefly glanced into the hold, asked a few questions which would have been pertinent had they not been entirely perfunctory, and took his leave.

From the gangway the captain turned back directly to his first officer and the latter's charge. Hearing his approaching footsteps, O'Rourke gathered himself together and summoned all his faculties to his aid.

"Troublesome?" demanded Hole, frowning.

"Not a syllable," said the mate. "Th' mon's sensible. I 'ave me doubts 'ut he's too canny altogether."

"Peaceful as a byby, eh? Well," savagely, "ell learn wot for. Get up, you Irish—"

O'Rourke lay passive under the storm of Hole's profanity. He had all but closed his eyes, and was watching the pair from beneath his lashes. Failing to elicit any response, "Ain't 'e moved?" demanded the captain.

"Not a muscle—"

"Shammin'! 'Ere, I'll show 'im."

O'Rourke gritted his teeth and suppressed a groan as the toe of Hole's heavy boot crashed into his ribs.

"Th' mon's nae shammin'." Dennison declared. "He's fair fainted."

"Fainted hell!" countered the captain. "Give 'is arm a twist, Dennison."

The mate calmly disobeyed. The arm-twist desired by the captain requires the use of the twister's two hands, and stoutly as he defended his opinion, the first officer was by no means ready to put up his revolver.

He advanced and bent over the Irishman, who lay motionless, his upper lip rolled back to show his clenched teeth. "Heugh!" exclaimed the first officer, peering into his face, his tone expressive of the liveliest concern. Without further hesitation he dropped the revolver into his pocket and—received a tremendous short-arm blow in the face.

With a stifled cry he fell back, clutching at a broken nose, and sprawled at length, while O'Rourke, leaping to his feet, deliberately put a heel into the pit of Dennison's stomach, thereby effectually eliminating him as a factor in the further controversy. Simultaneously he advanced upon Captain Hole.

But in the latter he encountered no mean antagonist. The man—it has been said—was as tall as and heavier than the adventurer, and by virtue of his position a competent and experienced rough-and-ready fighter. In a breath he had lowered his head and, bellowing like a bull, launched himself toward O'Rourke.

The Irishman met the onslaught with a stinging uppercut; which, nevertheless, failed to discourage the captain, who grappled and began to belabor O'Rourke with short, stabbing blows on the side of the head, at the same time endeavoring to trip him.

The fury of his onset all but carried the Irishman off his feet. At the same time it defeated Hole's own purpose. O'Rourke watched his chance, seized the man's throat with both hands and, tightening his grip, fairly lifted him off his feet and shook him as a terrier shakes a rat. Then, with a grunt of satisfaction, he threw the captain from him and turned to face greater odds.

The noise of the conflict had brought the crew down upon the contestants. Surrounded, he was rushed to the rail. With that to his back he drew on his reserve of strength and, poisoning himself, began to give his assailants personal and individual attention. They pushed him close, snarling and cursing, hindering one another in their eagerness, and suffering variously for their temerity. O'Rourke fought with trained precision; his blows, lightning quick, were direct from the shoulder and very finely placed; and so straight did he strike that almost from the first his knuckles were torn and bleeding from their impact upon flesh and bone.

Fight as fiercely as he might, however, the pack was too heavy for him; and when presently he discerned, not in one but in half a dozen hands, gleams of light—the rays of a near-by lantern running down knife-blades—he conceded the moment imminent when he must sever his connection with the Pelican. Moreover he had a shrewd suspicion that Hole was up and only waiting for an opening to use his revolver.

Leaping to the rail, he poised an instant, then dived far out from the vessel's side, down into the Stygian blackness of the harbor water; a good clear dive, cutting the water with hardly a splash, he went down like an arrow, gradually swerving from the straight line of his flight into a long arc—so long, indeed, that he was well-nigh breathless when he came to the surface, a dozen yards or more from the Pelican.

Spitting out the foul harbor water, and with a swift glance over his shoulder that showed him the Pelican's dark freeboard like a wall, and a cluster of dark shapes hanging over the rail at the top vaguely revealed by lantern light, he struck out for the nearest vessel, employing the double overhand stroke, noisy but speedy.

That he heard no cry when he came to the surface, that Hole had not detected him by the phosphorescence, and that he had held his hand from firing, at first puzzled O'Rourke; but he reasoned that Hole probably feared to raise an alarm and thereby attract much undesirable attention to himself and his ship. In the course of the first few strokes, however, he managed to keep again over his shoulder, and from the activity on the Pelican's decks concluded that he was to be pursued by boat; which, in fact, proved to be the case.

Fortunately the Pelican rode at anchor in waters studded thick with other vessels, affording plenty of hiding places on a night as black as that. The adventurer made direct for the first vessel, swam completely around it, and by the time the Pelican's boat was afloat and its rowers bending to the oars, he was supporting himself by a hand upon the unknown ship's cable, floating on his back with only his face out of water.

Under these conditions, it was small wonder that the boat missed him so completely.

At length rested, the Irishman released his hold and struck out for land at an easy pace.

Eventually he gained the end of a quay, upon which he drew himself for a last rest and to let his dripping garments drain a bit ere venturing abroad in the streets.

Not until then, strangely enough, did it come to him with its full force, how he had been tricked and played upon from the very beginning. And he swore bitterly when he contemplated his present position of a penniless outcast in a city almost wholly strange to him, without friends (save indeed, Danny—wherever he might be), without a place to lay his head, lacking even a change of clothing. His kit-box was aboard the Pelican and likely to remain there, for all he could do to the contrary; in his present state, to apply to the authorities or to at-

Not Salts, Oil or Pills But Cascarets

No Odds How Sick Your Stomach; How Hard Your Head Aches or How Bilious—Cascarets Make You Feel Great.

You men and women who somehow can't get feeling right—who have an almost daily headache, coated tongue, foul taste and foul breath, nervous and upset, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach, or have backache and fell all worn out.

Are you keeping clean inside with Cascarets, or merely forcing a passageway every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil? This is important.

Cascarets work while you sleep; cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour undigested and fermenting food and foul gasses; take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the decomposed waste matter and poison in the intestines and bowels.

A cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box from any drug store will keep your entire family feeling good for months. Don't forget the children. They love Cascarets because they taste good—do good—never gripe or sicken.

tempt to lodge a complaint against Captain Hole would more likely than not result in incarceration on a charge of vagrancy more real than technical.

And—the Pool of Flame! He fumed with impotent rage when he saw how blindly he had stumbled into Hole's trap, how neatly he had permitted himself to be raped of the Jewel. For in the light of late events he could not doubt but that Hole had sought him out armed with the knowledge that O'Rourke was in possession of the priceless Jewel—more than probably advised and employed by Des Trebes; assuming that he had failed to inflict a mortal wound upon that adventurer.

"Aw, the divvie, the divvie!" complained O'Rourke. "Sure, and 'tis a pretty mess I've made of it all, now!"

Saying which he rose and clambered to the top of the quay—with the more haste than good will in view of the fact that the splashing of oars, the dimly outlined shape of a boat heading directly for his refuge, had suddenly become visible. Of course, it might not be the Pelican; but O'Rourke was too thoroughly impressed with the conviction that the laws of coincidence were working against him, just then at any rate, to be willing to run unnecessary risks.

Chance, too, would have it that there should be an arc-light ablaze precisely at the foot of the pier, beneath which stood, clearly defined in the white glare, the figure of a hulking black native representative of the municipal police, whom O'Rourke must pass ere he could gain solid earth.

For this reason he dared not betray evidences of haste; his appearance was striking enough in all conscience, without any additional touches. So he thrust his hands into his pockets and sauntered with a well-assumed but perhaps not wholly convincing air of nonchalance toward the officer.

The latter remained all unsuspecting until—and then the mischief of it was that O'Rourke was still a full five yards from the wrong side of the man—Hole himself leaped from the boat upon the end of the quay and sent a yell echoing after the fugitive.

"Hey!" he roared. "Stop 'im! Deserter! Thief! Stop thief!"

The black was facing O'Rourke in an instant, but simultaneously the Irishman was upon him and had put an elbow smartly into his midriff in passing, all but toppling the man backwards into the harbor.

It had been well for him had he succeeded. As it was the fellow saved himself by a hair's breadth and the next minute was after O'Rourke, yelling madly.

The Irishman showed a fleet pair of heels, be sure; but, undoubtedly, the devil himself was in the luck that night! Who shall describe in what manner a rabble springs out of the very cobbles of Alexandria's streets? Men, women, naked children and yapping pariah dogs, fellahs, Arabs, Bedouins from the desert, Nubians, Greeks, Levantines—the fugitive had not covered two-score yards ere a mob of such composition was snapping at his calves.

Turning and twisting, dodging and doubling, smiting this gratuitous enemy full in the face, treating the next as he had the limb of the law (and leaving both howling), he seized the first opening and swung into a narrow back-way, leading inland from the waterfront.

He ran as seldom he had run before, straining and laboring, stumbling, recovering and plunging onward. And, by the gods, wasn't it hot! The khamsin raved and tore like a spirit of hell-fire through that narrow alley, turning it into a miniature inferno.

But in the course of some minutes, the end of the tunnel came in view; a lighted rift between house walls, giving upon the illuminated street beyond. The sight brought forth a fresh burst of speed from O'Rourke. He dashed madly out of the alley, stumbled and ran headlong into a strolling Greek, who grappled with him, at first in surprise and then in resentment, while the clamor of the pursuing rabble shrilled loud and near and ever nearer.

Exhausted as he was, the Irishman struggled with little skill before he mastered his own surprise; and in the end saw his fins written along the blade of a thin, keen knife which the Greek had whipped from the folds of his garments and jerked threateningly above his head.

It was falling when O'Rourke saw it. In another breath he had been stabbed. Unexpectedly the Greek shrieked, dropped the knife as though it had turned suddenly white-hot in his hands, and leaped back from O'Rourke, nursing a broken wrist; while a voice as sweet as the singing of angels rang in the fugitive's ears, though the spirit of its melody was simple and crude enough.

"O'Rourke, be all th' powers! The master himself! Glory, ye beggar, 'tis sorry I am that I didn't split the ugly face of ye wild me stick!"

"This way, yer honor! Come wild me!"

Blindly enough (indeed the world was all awbirl about him) O'Rourke, his arm grasped by a strong and confident hand, permitted himself to be swung to the right and across the street. In a thought blackness again was all about him, but the hand gripped his arm, hurrying him onward; and he yielded blindly to its guidance—without power, for that matter, to question or to object; what breath he had he sorely needed. And as blindly he stumbled on for perhaps another hundred yards, while the voice of the rabble made hideous the night behind him. Hardly, indeed, had the two whipped into the mouth of the back-way ere it was choked by a swarm of pursuers. But—"Niver fear!" said the voice at his side. "Tis ourselves the'll outwit them."

Here, now, yer honor, do ye go straight on widout shoppin' until ye come to an iron dore in a dead wall at the end av this. Knock there wance, count tin, and knock again. I'll lead 'em away and be wid ye again in a brace av shakes!"

Numbed by fatigue and exhaustion, O'Rourke obeyed. He was aware that his preserver with a wild whoop had darted aside into a cross-alley, but hardly aware of more. Mechanically he blundered on until brought up by a wall that closed and made a cul-de-sac of the way.

With trembling hands he felt before him, fingers encountering the smooth, cool surface of a sheet of metal. This, then, was the door. As carefully as he could he knocked, counted ten, and knocked again—while the mob that had lusted for his blood trailed off down the side alley in frantic pursuit of his generous preserver. And he heard with a smile, the latter's shrill defiant Irish yells luring them further upon the false scent.

"It 'tis not Danny," gasped the adventurer, "then myself's not the O'Rourke! Bless the lad!"

But as he breathed this benediction the iron door swung inward and he stumbled across the threshold, half-fainting, hardly conscious that he had done more than pass from open night to the night of an enclosed space. His foot caught on some obstruction and he went to his knees with a cry that was a cross between a sob and a groan; and incontinently fell full length upon an earthen floor, his head pillowed on his arm, panting as if his heart would break.

In the darkness above him someone cried aloud, a startled cry, and then the door was thrust to with a clang and rattle of bolts. A match rasped loudly and a flicker of light leaped from a small hand lamp and revealed to its bearer the fagged and quivering figure on the floor.

Some one sat down beside him with a low exclamation of solicitude and gathered his head into her lap. Some one quite simply enfolded his neck with soft arms and pressed his head to her bosom, and as if that were not enough, kissed him full and long upon his lips.

"My dear! My dear!" she murmured in French. "What has happened, O, what has happened? My poor, poor boy!"

Now the integral madness of all this was as effectual in restoring O'Rourke to partial consciousness as had been a douche of cold water in his face. Blankly he told himself that he was damned, and that it was all a dream. And yet, when he looked, it was to see, dim in the feeble glimmer of the lamp, the face of a woman as beautiful as young, as young as beautiful.

Exhausted as He Was, the Irishman Struggled With Little Skill.

One glance was enough. O'Rourke shut his eyes again. "If I look too long," he assured himself, "she'll vanish or—or turn into a fiend. Sure, 'tis a judgment upon me! Too long have I been an amorous dram-drinker; this will undoubtedly be the delirium-tremens of love!"

And with that he passed quietly into temporary unconsciousness.

CHAPTER XV.

He opened his eyes again, alone on the cool, damp, earthen floor, but assured that the feminine element in his adventure had been no hallucination, after all; for he could see the girl standing a little to one side and looking down upon him, her face so deep in shadow that he could gather nothing from its expression, whether it were of displeasure or of perplexity. From this and that, however, he deduced that she, discovering herself lavishing endearments on the wrong man, was not utterly delighted with the situation. The circumstances taken into consideration, such a state of mind he thought not unreasonable; and being now to some extent recovered, he saw no profit in making her suffer more. So with a show of faintness not wholly assumed, he rolled his head to one side, opening wide his eyes and looked the woman in the face, inquiring with his faint, thin brogue: "What's this, now, me dear?"

The girl's face darkened. She shook her head impatiently. "I have no English," she told him in excellent French. "Who are you? Why do you come here? You are not Danny!"

"Chol!" commented O'Rourke knowingly, "and that's the explanation, is it?" He sat up, embracing his knees and drawing a rueful face. "Faith, me dear," he admitted, "I concede ye the best of the argument, thus far. I am not Danny—'tis true as Gospel."

She frowned. "Then what are you doing here, monsieur? How did you learn—who told you—the signal?"

"Faith, from no less a person than Danny Mahone himself. He showed me the way and bade me knock—but niver a word said he of yourself, me dear."

"Monsieur does not recall that I admitted him?" she persisted, but with a lightening face, "nor anything that concerned the signal?"

Pure Food Movement Spreads Over Nation

The bureau of chemistry of the department of agriculture, of which Dr. W. H. Wiley, of Indiana, is chief, has just completed an inquiry to ascertain the scope of the pure food movement in this country. This inquiry shows that at present a serious attempt is made in forty-four states and territories of the United States and in Hawaii, the Philippine Islands and Porto Rico to enforce more or less extensive regulations relating to the purity and wholesomeness of foods.

The growing interest in this matter is illustrated by a comparison of these figures with those of 1905, when only twenty-five states and territories in the United States and Hawaii and Porto Rico made any attempt to enforce food laws.

It is explained that these figures do not include the states in which laws have been enacted without appropriations for their enforcement. There are only six states and territories now that have no local food laws with appropriations and machinery for their enforcement and of these two are territories and come within the provision of a federal food and drug act of 1906. The three remaining states have recently enacted laws which, while they can not have a marked effect on the markets of the present time, show the sentiment of the people and give hope that appropriations will soon be made. The funds appropriated by the several states for the enforcement of the food laws are increasing. Indiana is regarded by the bureau of chemistry as the state that is taking the lead in the enforcement of a well considered food law.

NEW FIELD OF LABOR

WORK PECULIARLY FITTED TO THE COLLEGE MEN.

Grain Brokers Furnish Remunerative Opportunities in Pleasant and Profitable Occupation.

Grain brokerage firms in the middle west have created a new profession for the agricultural college graduate.

When one holds down the job in question he is tagged an expert grain inspector. His business includes pleasure and business. It takes an expert knowledge of grain and farming conditions, but it is worth while, say the brokers.

The first specimens of the expert grain inspectors made their appearance in several Illinois counties recently. The inspector's chief duty is to travel through the grain districts a few weeks before harvest time. He learns the prospect of good or poor corn, wheat, oats, and hay yields in each community. Then when he has completed a tour of the district to which he has been assigned he tabulates the results and knows, practically to a fraction, what the yields will be.

The combined tabulations of three or four inspectors give the figures for a state or for the grain expected to be produced in the harvest of any month.

The brokerage firms have found this scheme brings them heavy business. They are able to present a statement of the probable yield to the investor and assert that dividends increase rapidly.

The expert crop inspector consequently stands between the investor's pocketbook and failure. If he is mistaken scores of persons may lose their fortunes.

"We generally pick college graduates for the positions," a broker said. "At an agricultural school the brightest of students pick up a complete knowledge of crops and are able to estimate the yield down to a fine point.

"Of course, some of our men are practical farmers who have gained knowledge by experience. But the practical farmer is not likely to take up with the work unless he has made a failure on his own farm.

"Although the inspectors earn anything from $1,500 to $5,000 a year, the practical farmer who has made good will stay on his land and make it pay him three times as much as he can earn in the new profession."

TESTS HEAT OF THE FURNACE

Instrument Known as the Radiation Pyrometer Measures the Temperature.

No thermometer could ever be expected to record the temperature of furnaces or of great masses of molten metal, although the development of science along certain lines has made it very necessary to determine the degree of heat in furnaces and contained in masses of metal, such as huge steel billets and great cubes of iron.

The discovery that two different kinds of metal welded together produced a current of electricity was the means of inventing a means of determining the quantity of heat, no matter how intense. The current is measured by voltage and certain temperatures produce certain values in electrical strength, and that is the way the amount of heat is measured. The electrical energy is measured in degrees of heat, and this has been found to be accurate.

The principle is applied in a wonderful device known as the radiation pyrometer. It can stand at a considerable distance from the furnace or mass of molten metal that is being tested and it will record the internal heat conditions accurately. It is an aid to better steel and iron products, and as the world progresses it will be recorded as one of the great agencies of man to enable him to delve into the mysteries of Nature's laboratories. —Harper's Weekly.

Artificial Sponge Made in Germany.

An artificial sponge, the outcome of German ingenuity, is now being manufactured. The process of making it consists principally in the action of zinc chloride on pure cellulose. This results in a pasty, viscous mass, which is mixed with coarsely grained rock salt. Placed in a press mold armed with pins, the mass is pierced through and through until it appears traversed by a multitude of tiny canals like the pores of a natural sponge. The excess of salts is subsequently removed by prolonged washing in a weak alcoholic solution. The artificial sponge swells up with water, but hardens on drying, just like its prototype. It is said to be eminently adapted for filtering water for sanitary or industrial uses, and it can be employed for all the purposes that are usually assigned to the genuine article.

Uncle Sam as Employer.

In 1911 there were approximately 6,327 names on the federal pay roll, or about one to every 1,300 of the population. In 1911 there are 384,088, or one to every 242 of the population. Add 121,000 for the army and navy, 1,415 for representatives abroad and nearly 7,000 as employees of congress itself and of the judiciary, and we have a total of 513,854, or one in 180 of the population. Fourth-class postmasters employ on private account some 64,000 clerks, many of whom do other than postal work.

THAT OLD-FASHIONED LADY

Sweet Picture That Some of Us Are Privileged to Carry in Our Memories.

Everybody loved that old-fashioned lady. And I find almost everyone past forty has, at the back of his mind, vivid impressions regarding her and the social life of which she was the center. One remembers the atmosphere of that day as one remembers the bluish roses and spicy pinks of old gardens. Even yet there are gardens where bluish roses grow, and I know some women not yet old, and a few young girls, whose mere presence serves today to reproduce that atmosphere. She was dauntless and sweet, that old-fashioned lady; witty but tender; as notable a housewife as a hostess; full of gentle concern for others, with a mind ever at leisure for their affairs, and a heart whose sympathy was instantaneous in their service. She stimulated and she soothed. Fine, complicated and interesting as the old lace and finely wrought gold she delighted to wear, she was a very precious piece of porcelain. The brilliant, soft daguerreotype that has preserved her early likeness for us did not idealize her beyond her just due. Perhaps the intimate secret of her influence was the impression she gave of one whose heart is fixed, one whom the world can no longer harm. —The Atlantic.

UPPER INDIANA IS IN ZONE OF EARTHQUAKE

A Distinct Shock Was Felt In Four States.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—The steel girders of skyscrapers creaked when two distinct earthquake tremors chased one another up and down Chicago's corporate spine yesterday.

The first tremor, which was felt at 10:18 o'clock, distributed itself over practically northern Illinois and parts of Iowa, Wisconsin and Indiana. The second tremor, three minutes later, was not felt in quite so wide an area.

The movements of the earth were felt as far west as Davenport, Ia., and as far east as Fort Wayne, Ind. At Bloomington, Ill., in central Illinois, there was but slight evidence of the quake. At Aurora, Ill., the tremor caused the explosion of a great tank of gasoline at the plant of the Fox River Packing company. When the Aurora Beacon went to press in the afternoon it was noticed that the paper did not look natural. The news showed an inexplicable desire to slip off the paper. An investigation showed that the press had been jarred from its base and was not working normally.

Among the Illinois cities and towns that reported the tremors distinctly felt are Joliet, Galesburg, Aurora, Rockford, Kankakee, Mendota, Dixon, Elgin, Freeport and Galena. In Racine, Milwaukee, Janesville and other Wisconsin cities the shock was distinctly felt.

MEN ARE HELPLESS AS CHILDREN

When Taken Suddenly Ill—Here is a Common Sense Safeguard.

Big, strong man is as a helpless infant when he is suddenly ill. The sturdiest chap in town usually loses his self-control, and is utterly unable to regard his condition with the common sense that characterizes his every-day actions.

For example: He comes home tired, eats a heavy dinner and sits down to read and smoke away a quiet evening.

Suddenly he notices a weight on his stomach; then sharp pains around his heart, and a feeling of suffocation. Thoughts of "heart disease" rush over him, and in his agony he fears the worst.

His trouble was acute indigestion, brought on by overloading his tired stomach.

YOUNG WOMAN HAD A HARD TIME ON ROAD

Tramping in Midwinter Proved Bitter Experience.

Lafayette, Ind., Jan. 3.—With both of her feet frozen and nearly famished, Clara Sommers, a young woman from Pittsburg, Kan., was taken into custody in the Monon yards by the police. With her was her husband Enoch. The two had traveled many miles on freight trains and had finally walked thirty miles from Chalmers to Lafayette. After leaving Kansas the couple went to a small town near Ft. Wayne. Sommers worked at the building trade until the season closed. He next tried cutting wood, but could not live on the meager wages. Then they decided to go back to Kansas and started on a freight train.

Mrs. Sommers was dressed in man's attire when arrested. She and her husband came to this city on the Wash road and intended taking another train for the west. Boarding the wrong train, the two were carried as far as Chalmers on the Monon. Then they started back to Lafayette on foot. Mrs. Sommers's feet were so badly injured one may have to be amputated. The couple had eaten nothing for two days. Mrs. Sommers is at the Martha Home for Women and the husband is being taken care of at the jail.

HOBBO KING NO. 2 WAS ACQUITTED

Charge of Kidnapping Not Sustained By Jury.

BOY DETERMINED TO TRAMP

Story of the College-Bred "King of the Hobos" Regarding His Connection With the Disappearance of Young Colbert at Shelbyville Convinced the Jury That Laid "Took the Road" on His Own Account.

Shelbyville, Ind., Jan. 3.—James J. Corbett, aged thirty-two, charged with child stealing, was found not guilty. It was alleged that he had kidnapped Harold Colbert, aged thirteen.

Corbett, who calls himself "Hobbo King A No. 2," denied the charge. In his testimony Corbett said that his home was in Chicago, that he had been graduated from high school and from Notre Dame university with the class of 1908. He then went to Washington, where he entered a law school, but after four months there his sight failed him and he had to leave school. He then began the life of a hobo because he wished to write a book on hobo life. Corbett said he took the name of "Hobbo King No. 2" because it might better the sale of his book. He had talked at a number of high schools for the small collections he received.

Corbett came here late in September, met Colbert, who wished to go hobnobbing with him, he said, but he refused to take him. When he was ready to leave here a week later, Corbett told Corbett he would do anything to let him go along. Corbett refused, he said, but the boy "hopped" the train with him when he left town, nor could he induce the lad to go back. Corbett said he often offered to take the boy home if he would go, but the boy refused, saying that he liked hobo life. Their journey was interrupted, however, when they reached Toledo, O., and were arrested for begging. Corbett was brought home and the "hobo king" was held on a kidnapping charge.

companion. The committee was fully aware of the kind of reception Mr. Pugh and his company will receive here when it was retained and it is a well known fact that the company is among the best under the bureau by which it is employed. The Pugh company will give both pre- ludes Tuesday and the one Wednes- day afternoon and Wednesday night this company will give the complete program.

Thursday afternoon next to the strongest afternoon program, with the exception of the Sunday pro- grams, will be given, when Mrs. Le- nore M. Lake will lecture on the topic "Divine Right of the Child." She has been highly successful in chautau- qua work and her appearance is ex- pected to attract many that after- noon. So popular has she been at the Richmond chautauqua that she has been employed three succe- sive summers.

Thursday night Ralph Bingham, a humorist of national fame, will give the entertainment. People familiar with the Lyceum talent are well ac- quainted with his ability and his many triumphs. Possibly his great- est achievement and that which brought the most honor to him and recognition to his ability was that when he was chosen to take charge of "Joy Night" at the annual con- vention of the International Lyceum As- sociation at Winona last summer. The association is composed of all of the chautauqua talent in the world and all interested in this work attend the annual gathering at Winona each summer.

The Kellogg-Haines Concert Com- pany will come Thursday for a two days' engagement. This company not only sings grand opera but also light opera and popular music of all sorts. Each member of the company is a so- loist of great ability and the program is varied and highly entertaining. It is a high priced musical organization. The company will give the prelude Thursday afternoon and night, Fri- day afternoon, and the whole concert Friday night.

Friday afternoon the other "head- liner" of the week, Gov. Hoek of Kansas, will lecture. His subject has already been announced and it is, "A Message From Kansas." Gov. Hoek is one of the foremost govern- ors in the United States and has gained an enviable reputation on the Lyceum stage. The management be- lieves that he and Gov. Glenn will doubtless attract the largest crowds of the week.

The last two days of the assembly "The Orpheans," a male quartet, will be here. The quartet is one of the premier quartets on the chautauqua circuit and has been organized for several years. They have feature quartet songs and solos that are said to be better than those of any other ever appearing at a local chautau- qua. They will furnish the prelude the last two days and may give a long program Saturday afternoon.

Saturday night Sidney Landon, a literary interpreter, will be the at- traction. His work is in the nature of that of William Sterling Battis, "The Dickens Man" who made such a pro- found impression on Saturday night last year, only he sticks to no one certain author. His entertainment is calculated to please and entertain.

The closing Sunday will doubtless be a day that will be remembered for years in the history of the Rush County Chautauqua. George R. Stewart, no doubt the most popular man who ever appeared before a Men's Big Meeting here, will give the afternoon and light lectures. One of his subjects will be "Lop-Sided Folks."

Mr. Stewart spoke at a men's meeting here four years ago on "Stump Diggin'" and was very popu- lar. He has a personality and win- ning manner that is scarcely ever equalled by any chautauqua orator. He has a week at the Winona Assem- bly every year and is one of the lead- ing orators on the stage today.

Prof. Paul M. Pearson of Swath- more, Pa., will be the platform man this year and will also give a series of course lectures, one each after- noon. Prof. Pearson will also be an institute lecturer in the morning. His ability to act as platform manager, it is said, is far above the average and the management feels, from the rec- ommendations they have received, that he will more than fill the bill. His course lectures will be on Dick- ens, Browning, Tennyson and other well known authors and poets.

The program committee expects to arrange for at least one more course lecturer. This will be used to fill in the afternoon programs.

CONVENTION
CALLS ISSUED

County Chairmen Will be Elected by Precinct Committeemen on Monday, January 29.

THEY WILL BE NAMED JAN. 29.

On Following Day District Convention
Delegates Will be Chosen—It
Will be Jan 31.

The official call for the election of Republican precinct committeemen, for the election of county chairmen, for the selection of delegates to Re- publican district conventions, and for the election of a Republican State chairman, was sent out yesterday by State Chairman Edwin M. Lee of the Indiana Republican State central committee.

The apportionment of delegates in the several counties is made on the basis of the vote for Otis E. Gulley, Republican candidate for secretary of State in 1910.

In the district conventions, which are set for Wednesday, January 31 in the various districts, each county will be entitled to one vote for each 200 votes cast for Gulley with an addi- tional delegate for a fraction of more than 100 votes.

The call is in accord with the plans promulgated recently by the Republican State central committee. It is as follows:

"To the Republicans of Indiana and all those who desire to co-operate with them:

"Pursuant to the order of the Re- publican State committee you are in- vited to participate in elections in the respective counties of the State for the selection of precinct committeemen, such precinct committeemen to elect county chairmen and other of- ficers of the county committees of the respective counties, on the dates hereinafter named; and for the election of delegates to district conventions for the purpose of electing district chairmen for the respective congressional districts, shall be held on January 26 and 27, 1912.

The precinct committeemen thus elected will meet on Monday, January 29 at such hour and place as the county committees of the respective counties shall indicate for the purpose of electing county chairmen.

"Delegates to district conventions will meet on Wednesday, January 31, at such hour and place in the respective congressional districts as the district chairmen shall indicate, for the purpose of electing district chairmen.

"The district chairmen thus elected will meet in Indianapolis at the Re- publican committee headquarters on Friday, February 2, for the purpose of electing a chairman of the Repub- lican State committee.

"Delegates to district conventions will be apportioned among the several counties of the State on the basis of one delegate for every 200 votes and for each additional fraction of more than 100 votes cast for Otis E. Gulley, secretary of State, at the No- vember election, 1910.

"The election of precinct commit- teemen and delegates to district con- ventions, as indicated above, in each county of the State, shall be either by primaries or massed conventions and shall be held in the respective coun- ties, townships, precincts or wards between such hours and at such places and under such rules and reg- ulations not contrary to the rules of the State committee as the county chairman may fix. The county chairman of the several counties will apportion to the different townships, wards or precincts of their counties, the representation to which they are entitled and make all necessary ar- rangements accordingly, giving notice at least two weeks by publication in the Republican press of their com- mittees of the day, hour and place of voting."

The call is signed by Mr. Lee and John F. Hayes, secretary.

The Sixth district apportionment is as follows: Fayette, 11; Frank- lin, 7; Hancock, 10; Henry, 18; Rush, 14; Shelby, 15; Union, 5; and Wayne 26. Total 106.
